> ACCORDINGLY, it was the raw product upon which the price was fixed and the wholesaler who handled the raw product who was regulated. And this was accomplished by setting up for each commodity a committee composed of leading men in the industry, who, with a Federal official presiding, regulated their own industry. This insured it being done by men who knew what they were doing. Once this was accomplished at the source it was easy to handle the retailers by the simple method of fixing a profit percentage for their gross business. Thus, prices were kept down without ceilings, without confusion, without an unwieldy organization, without the incredibly complicated orders and regulations which are now being promulgated.

IN this war that plan, which really worked, has been discarded. Instead, with both wages and food tion by putting ceilings over retail prices. Instead of dealing with twenty commodities, he has about 30,000 with which to deal. As a result, of course, he has to have a vast organization. There are more than 40,000 men in it now, and his plans are for more than 90,000 Among them are hundreds of al leged experts and "technicians" who are turning out an unbeliev able number of pronouncements. proclamations, orders and directions, so complicated as to be imexample, take the most recent OPA proclamation on the subject of wholesale beef regulation. This document contains approximately 40,000 closely printed words, which go into such intricate detail that it is safe to say no human being will profited by that experience and THE directions as to how the meat shall be butchered are, in themselves, almost a volume. Here is a sample "The excess loin (lumbar) and pelvic (sacral) fat shall be trimmed from the inside of the full loin by placing the full loin upon a flat surface, with no other support to change its position, meat side down, and removing all fat which extends above a flat plane parallel with the flat surface supporting the full loin and on a level with the full length of the protruding edge of the lumbar section of the chine bone. Then all fat shall be removed which extends above a flat plane, using the following two lines as guides for each edge of the plane: an imaginary line parallel with the full length of the protruding edge or the lambar section of the chine bone which line extends one inch directly above such protruding edge; a line on the inside of the loin two inches from the flank edge and running parallel with such edge for the full length of the loin. All fat obstructing the measurement of the second line shall first be removed. In addition to the foregoing, all rough fat in the pelvic cavity of the heavy end of the loin (sirloin) shall be trimmed smooth and trimming by a knife shall be apparent. No fat remaining in the pelvic cavity shall exceed one inch in depth."

THAT is a typical passage. Liter ally, there are pages like that. It is the sort of thing that can't be be lieved until it is seen. It is as incomprehensible as it is unnecessary no such organization existed in the last war, and no such comic detailed regulation was attempted. Certainly no such absurdly volumi-
